

A large, central illustration of a duck standing in water. The duck is dark with a white neck and a white patch on its chest. Its reflection is visible in the water below. Several autumn leaves in shades of orange, red, and brown are scattered around the duck's feet. The background is a dark, textured green.

According to legend, English sailors used to be bribed with coins to join the navy, and, many times, they would be tricked into joining by being given a beer with a coin at the bottom of the glass. Men began to say "bottoms up" to their drinking partners so that they could see if coins were hidden inside of the glasses before the drinks were finished.

DUCK SPEAK

FEELING PECKISH? Are you hungry?

BOTTOMS UP! To drink the contents of one's beverage.
Literally to tilt the bottom of one's glass upward until it is empty.

A LITTLE BIRDIE TOLD ME I heard it on the grapevine

DUCKING AND DIVING participating in a variety of activities-often illicit

AS TIGHT AS A DUCK'S GLASS stingy

WET ONE'S BEAK to drink a beverage

BY FAIR MEANS OR FOWL to win by any means possible

RULE THE ROOST be the boss

TAKE A GANDER take a look (literally by stretching one's neck in manner of a duck)

BIRDS OF A FEATHER FLOCK TOGETHER people of similar behavior/appearance tend to hang out together

ALL DUCK OR NO DINNER all or nothing

RUFFLE A FEW FEATHERS shake things up

FLOCK TO IT! Yalla! Hurry up!
